

All-USA Academic Team

Applicant & Nominator Guide

The All-USA Academic Team seeks to honor outstanding students from a variety of backgrounds and disciplines to hold up as representatives of all outstanding two-year college students. Because each school is limited to nominating two students per campus, the work students put into their application will determine how competitive they will be in the national competition. Weaving their story in a coherent fashion is critical in letting nominators and our judges know who the student is, what they are doing, and why they feel qualified to receive this recognition.

Nominees to the All-USA Academic Team may also be considered for the Coca-Cola Academic Team, New Century Scholars programs, and All-State Academic Teams where applicable. To be considered for this scholarship, you must be nominated by the designated nominator on your college's campus.

The online application opens September 15, 2017, for access by both students and nominators. Student access will close on November 15, 2017. Nominators will have until November 29, 2017, at 5:00 pm, CT, to review applications and submit the completed applications of their nominees. Student applications and nominations must be submitted online; incomplete applications will not be considered for nomination.

All-USA Academic Team Applicant Guide

Overview

Applicants considered as nominees may be pursuing an associate degree or intend to transfer to the four-year school. The All-USA Academic Team is a merit award based on your accomplishments at the two-year college. Judging criteria include academic excellence and intellectual rigor; leadership and service; and how you have extended your education beyond the classroom to benefit society. In selecting nominees to represent your institution, presidents/nominators are asked to consider outstanding academic rigor and grade point averages; participation in honors programs; awards, honors, and recognition for academic achievement; and service to the college and community. Nominees selected may be considered role models on your campus. Nominators are asked to consider students they feel would be a proud representation of your two-year college.

Leadership Considerations

The centerpiece of your application is the 500-word essay describing your most significant endeavor while attending the two-year college in which you extended your two-year college education to benefit the school, community or society. Judges look for innovative, creative, original and lasting achievements or undertakings. Your endeavor can be based in community service, research, the arts, journalism or public affairs. Students who have demonstrated leadership and initiative in service learning, who contributed to scholarly research, or who have made lasting contributions to their campus or community make excellent candidates. If endeavors are not yet complete, they must be far enough along so that the nominee and advisor can discuss the specifics of work done thus far.

Academic Considerations

The program is an "academic" team as well, so your academic record is important. Judges look at the overall academic record and how well your courses match your career goals. Transcripts are evaluated when a student's application is received. The student's GPA is evaluated at the point of submission. The application allows space for you to explain circumstances that may have affected your transcript, so if you have experienced several withdrawals or a temporary drop in grades, it should not necessarily rule you out of the competition. However, research shows statistically that students with several withdrawals do not achieve high academic rigor. As a result, a student nominee with more than a couple of unexplained withdrawals will not typically advance in competition. Be sure you understand your transcript and how the judges will view your course information over the history of your college attendance.

The discussion questions posed are structured to give judges a sense of your background. The program is open to part-time as well as full-time students, so the answers to discussion questions give the judges a sense of your commitments outside of school so that your achievements can be seen in context. The questions should not be interpreted to mean that you must have overcome obstacles or be somehow disadvantaged in order to be named to the All-USA Academic Team.

The program is an "Academic" team as well, so the student's academic record is important. Judges look at the overall academic record and how well students' courses match their career goals. The form allows students to explain circumstances that may have affected their transcript(s), so students with several withdrawals or a temporary drop in grades should not necessarily be ruled out. However, carefully consider those students with several withdrawals as statistically they do not achieve high academic rigor. As a result, a nominee with more than a couple of unexplained withdrawals will not typically advance in competition. To ensure a quality applicant, it is wise to review a nominee's transcript in advance for both breadth and depth.

Program Details

Nominees to the All-USA Academic Team may also be considered for the Coca-Cola Academic Team, New Century Scholars programs, and All-State Academic Teams where applicable. Nominator instructions are emailed directly to nominators prior to the opening of the application. If you do not receive login instructions by early October, check your spam folder, and call the Scholarship team at 601.987.5741.

How to Change the Nominator at Your School:

Each year Phi Theta Kappa will contact the college president or CEO and nominator from the previous year to determine the individual who will serve as the college/campus nominator for the current year. If a response is not received, the college president or CEO is automatically designated as the nominator. Nomination instructions and login information will be sent directly to the designated nominator. The college president can change his or her designated nominator here.

How to Nominate a Student

In order to increase the quantity and quality of student applications, the All-USA Academic Team program is open to all eligible students. This increases the number of applicants received and provides a greater variety of student representation from which to choose. Each college may self-select two nominees per college campus to nominate for the program.

Nominators may review a checklist to determine if a student's application is complete, as well as view the student's answers to the questions on the online application. Students must upload two letters of recommendation, one speaking to their leadership skills and one speaking to their academic excellence. Applications without these letters of recommendation are still considered to be incomplete, even if the student has completed his or her portions of the application. It is the student's responsibility to request and upload these letters of recommendations before the application deadline of November 15, 2017.

If the college would like to build in more time to review and process applications prior to the deadline, please consider establishing and publicizing an earlier internal deadline for completion of student applications.

Important Considerations

Nominees must realize anything they submit in the nomination form could be made public through the media. Students must consider carefully the possibility that should they win, publicity about their accomplishments – work with support groups or advocacy, for example – could carry implications about their personal lives or immigration status. In fairness to all nominees, and because winners' forms are used as the basis for news coverage of the teams, contents are subject to rigorous fact-checking. Please note that all nominees will be required to go through a verification process. As a nominator, you are requested to notify Phi Theta Kappa if a nominee faces any type of disciplinary action during the time between nomination and public awarding at the AACC Convention.

Transcripts are evaluated when a student's application is received. The student GPA is evaluated at the point of submission. Remedial or developmental courses are removed and are not counted toward the student's required total courses or toward the cumulative GPA. If there is a question about the student's grades or credits and whether or not they are eligible, it may benefit the student to have the transcript evaluated prior to submission. All nominees must send official transcripts reflecting fall 2017 grades and credits upon request. Failure to submit these transcripts will result in the application being eliminated from consideration of national scholarships.

Should your student be selected as an All-USA Academic Team Scholar or New Century Scholar, your college is responsible for covering the scholar's travel and accommodation expenses to the recognition program held at the AACC Convention.
